Shakespearean actor, banjo player, theologian, author (Raised Catholic, Can You Tell? and Still Catholic After All These Fears), mummer, dreamer, juggler, and raconteur. Ed Stivender is all that and so much more.

Called "the Robin Williams of storytelling" by the Miami Herald, Ed was a featured performer at the National Storytelling Festival, the Cape Clear Island International Storytelling Festival in Ireland, and at our own Philadelphia Folk Festival. He's traveled the world appearing in schools, churches, coffeehouses, and theaters. A resident of Springfield, Delaware County, Ed has strutted in the Comic division of the Philadelphia Mummers Parade since 1982 and three times won the award for Most Original Character. And that he is.
